DETAILED ACTION

Acknowledgment is made of the receipt of the amendment filed on 4/22/03. Claims 1-6 and 8-36 are currently pending.

Claim Objections

1. Claims 2 and 5 are objected to because of the following informalities:

in claim 2, lines 6 and 8, delete "capable of";

in claim 5, line 6, "is capable of accessing" with --accesses--; and in claim 5, line 8, "capable of generating" with --generates--.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1, 8-12, and 17-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Berson (US 5,598,477).

Berson teaches a system for issuing airline tickets. A purchaser wishing to obtain an airline ticket inputs information through a personal computer 10 to data processing system 12-1. Data processing system 12-1 communicates with an airline reservation system to obtain information as to the availability of suitable flights consistent with the purchaser's itinerary.

Data processing system 12-1 returns ticket information, including encrypted validating information, purchaser's name, destination, flight, and fare, to a local printing system 20. The local printing system is a non-intelligent printer operating under the control of personal computer 10 (col. 3, lines 21-60 and col. 4, lines 45-57).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 2-6 and 13-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Webber et al. (US 5,021,953) (hereinafter referred to as 'Webber') in view of Berson.

Webber teaches a system comprising a processor 18 which includes, or communicates with, a tariff file 20 for storing airline schedules, routings and footnotes, legal connecting times, and fares; a traveler file 22 for storing individual traveler's name and address and telephone numbers, credit card numbers, frequent traveler numbers, and seating preference; an airline reservation system 30 for storing seat availability; and a trip record for storing a traveler's itinerary and printing the itinerary and ticket at the traveler's personal computer (col. 5, line 22- col. 6, line 21; col. 17, lines 30-42).

Webber lacks the teaching of a unique indicia assigned to the ticket and ticket information in computer-readable form binding a particular seat to a particular customer. Also not taught is the newly added limitation whereby the customer may print the ticket independent of ticket printing authorization from the ticket database.

The teachings of Berson have been discussed above.

One of ordinary skill in the art would have readily recognized that a unique indicia assigned to the ticket would have been beneficial for thwarting off fraudulent use of the ticket by making the pertinent ticket information available to only those in possession of instruments used to ascertain the indicia. Therefore, it would have been obvious, at the time the invention was made, to modify the teachings of Webber with the cipher-code of Berson as a security means.

6. Claims 24-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kay in view of Rosen (US 6,336,095).

Kay teaches a ticket having a cipher-coded bar code 33 located thereon representing ticket information including description of event, venue, and seat location (col. 3, line 66-col. 4, line 3; col. 4, lines 29-46). The ticket may be printed using a standard PC assembly of a ticket purchaser (col. 2, lines 45-54).

Kay lacks the teaching whereby the ticket is useable by a ticket bearer without regard to the particular customer to which the particular seat is bound.

Rosen teaches a system wherein a ticket is purchased via a desktop owner and transferred to another party (col. 26, lines 1-7).

One of ordinary skill in the art would have readily recognized that the convenience of being able to transfer a ticket is beneficial since, in this manner, ownership of a ticket may change hands in the wake of an instance where the purchaser can not use the ticket. Therefore, it would have been obvious, at the time the invention was made, to modify the teachings of Kay with the transferable ticket as taught by Rosen to guarantee that the ticket will be put to use by someone.

7. Claims 29-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Webber/Berson as applied to claims 2 and 5 above, and further in view of Rosen.

Webber/Berson lack the teaching whereby the ticket is useable by a ticket bearer without regard to the particular customer to which the particular seat is bound.

The teachings of Rosen have been discussed above.

Again, one of ordinary skill in the art would have readily recognized that the convenience of being able to transfer a ticket is beneficial since, in this manner, ownership of a ticket may change hands in the wake of an instance where the purchaser can not use the ticket. Therefore, it would have been obvious, at the time the invention was made, to modify the teachings of Webber/Berson with the transferable ticket as taught by Rosen to guarantee that the ticket will be put to use by someone.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-6 and 8-36 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

New rejections have been applied to claims which include new limitations including,

Art Unit: 2876

“transmitting a ticket to a customer-selectable remote device independent of ticket printing authorization from the system for creating a ticket” and “the ticket is useable by a ticket bearer without regard to the particular customer to which the particular seat is bound”.

Conclusion

9. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a).

Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
